This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

OF THE

MERCANTILE LIBRARY COMPANY.

THE Mercantile Library Company was instituted in the year 1821; the first meeting with a view to its establishment having been held at the Masonic Hall on the 10th of November in that year. From this meeting emanated a public notice, inviting merchants, merchants' clerks, and others friendly to the formation of a "Mercantile Library Association," to meet at the Mayor's Court-room on the 17th of the same month. The object was submitted to the consideration of this meeting, and receiving the warm approbation of a large assemblage of merchants; a committee was appointed to report a constitution to a subsequent public meeting. The following gentlemen were appointed on this committee: Robert Waln, Robert Ralston, Joseph P. Norris, Zaccheus Collins, Bernard Dahlgren, John Roberts, Joseph H. Dulles, William H. Jones, and William E. Bowen. The duties thus assigned them received the particular attention of the distinguished citizens at the head of the list, whose names are an ornament not only to this institution, but to our city and the country at large. By their personal influence and wise counsels, they have contributed greatly to the character of solid, unostentatious usefulness which the Company has hitherto sustained; and the original draft of the Constitution, with the autographs of these gentlemen, remains an interesting document among the records of the Library. The following report of the committee shows the course taken in the organization of the Company:

"The committee appointed at a meeting of the 'merchants, merchants' clerks, and others friendly to the formation of a Mercantile Library Association,' report,—

"That they have met and considered the subject referred to them, and now submit to the consideration of the meeting a draft of an association for the said purpose, and in order to carry the same (if approved) into effect, they submit to the meeting the following resolutions, viz.:

"Resolved, That the chairman of this meeting be authorized to appoint a committee of fifteen persons, whose duty it shall be to cause a correct copy of the said articles of association to be entered in a book to be provided for the purpose, and to obtain subscriptions to the same, and whenever a number of subscribers, not less than one hundred, shall be obtained, then to determine on the place and hour at which the first election of directors and treasurer shall be held, and to give notice thereof in four or more of the newspapers of this city; and that this committee have power to fill vacancies in its own body.

"Resolved, That the said committee shall appoint three suitable persons to receive the votes of the members of the association at the said election, and to be judges thereof; and it shall be the duty of the said committee to give notice to the persons chosen as directors and treasurer of their election, and they shall pay over to the treasurer all moneys which may have been received by them on account of the said association.

By order of the Committee.

ROBERT WALN, Chairman."

The Constitution was adopted by the unanimous vote of the adjourned meeting held on the 1st December, 1821.

The committee appointed to obtain subscribers having, within a few days, more than three hundred members enrolled, gave public notice of the first election. This was held on the 10th of January, 1822, at the Merchants' Coffee House in Second Street, near Walnut Street.

The following officers were elected, on whom devolved the labor of organizing the Library and carrying out the designs of its founders.

JOSEPH H. DULLES, Treasurer.

It being one chief object of the Institution to provide the advantages of a useful library at the least charge, the terms of membership were originally fixed at three dollars contribution on admission to membership, and a half-yearly payment of one dollar. These terms were varied subsequently as the value of the Library and the expense of sustaining it were increased.

The Board was organized on the 14th January, and on the 19th the rooms in the second story of the house No. 100 Chesnut Street were engaged at a rent of one hundred dollars a year, and D. Culver appointed Librarian at a salary of one hundred dollars; the Library to be kept open every evening excepting Sundays.

A committee of three (Messrs. Atwood, Dulles and Walmsley,) were charged with the selection and purchase of books, and in the course of a year had so far succeeded as to publish a respectable catalogue, to which a supplement was not long after added. The members originally appointed on this committee continued to serve sixteen years.

The rooms were opened for use on the 5th March, 1822, and an address to the public was made, setting forth the objects of the Institution, and the benefits to be derived by men of business from the use of a library peculiarly adapted to their purposes. This address was from the pen of William M. Walmsley, one of the purchasing committee, who labored most faithfully in the service of the Company from its institution until his decease, which occurred during the present year, 1840.

In the year 1824 an additional catalogue was published, at which time the Library contained 1500 volumes, there being then 380 members.

The rooms being much resorted to by the members, it was deemed proper to add a few daily newspapers to the collection of books and periodicals. At the annual meeting, 12th January, 1825, it was ordered that this change be made, and three city papers and two from New York were taken. The supply of papers has been moderately extended from time to time.

The most important measure adopted by the Company, since its organization, was that by which it resolved itself into a joint-stock company. The plan was proposed by the Directors at the annual meeting of the members in January, 1826, and, in order to obtain deliberate action and the acquiescence of all the members, the consideration of the subject was postponed to an adjourned meeting held on the 26th January, when it was unanimously adopted.

The experiment of sustaining such an institution had been fairly tried; a valuable collection of books had been obtained; and the character of the Library was well established. To secure, in the most permanent form, the benefits thus acquired, it was resolved, :—That, estimating the books, debts, and furniture at $3000, the same be divided into 300 shares of ten dollars each; and that certificates of stock, transferable under regulations of the Board of Directors, be issued to that extent, subject to an annual payment of one dollar. The members of the Company who have contributed three dollars, to be entitled to purchase, each one share, at seven dollars.

At the annual meeting in January, 1829, the Directors were authorized to increase the issue of stock by two hundred shares additional, making five hundred shares in all.

In 1831 the contributions were increased, the stockholders being required to pay one dollar half-yearly, viz., on 1st January and 1st July, and subscribers to pay one dollar and a-half at each half-yearly payment. By these measures, the funds of the Company were greatly increased, and their valuable collection of books secured, by a permanent interest in the shape of joint stock and by a certain revenue, from the dangers of decay, or any diversion from the main design of the proprietors.

On 17th April, 1826, the Library was removed to the second story of the building at the north-east corner of Chesnut and Fifth streets; and Mr. A. Remley, who had acted a short time as Librarian, was succeeded by Mr. H. Ayres.

The increase of the Library led to the removal to larger rooms in the buildings of the American Sunday School Union, No. 144 Chesnut Street, in October, 1827; and a new catalogue was published in July, 1828, comprising 2,118 volumes.

On 26th July, 1830, James Cox was appointed Librarian, on the resignation of Mr. Ayres, and continued to discharge the duties of the office until December, 1849, when he was succeeded by A. McElroy.*

* Extract from the Annual Report of January 1850.

"Considérations, arising out of the extended interests of the Company, having convinced the Board of Directors that great benefits would arise from centering the details of management in an efficient executive head, an arrangement has been entered upon, which, in the opinion of the Board, while it simplifies, will greatly expedite the transactions of the Company.

"By an arrangement entered into on the first of December last, the Board has engaged Archibald McElroy as Librarian, for the sum of twelve hundred dollars per annum.

"In the articles of agreement, he stipulates to superintend the concerns of the building and Library, all and severally—assumes by himself and assistants, the duties of Librarian—agrees to let and collect the rents of the offices and rooms, and the annual dues from members, embracing all the duties heretofore performed, holding himself responsible, with approved security, for the prompt and efficient performance of the same.

With a view to the improvement of the members, a series of lectures on mercantile law were delivered during the winter of 1827 and 1828, by a number of gentlemen of the bar. These on the following winter were renewed; and for several successive years courses of lectures were sustained by the Company, until the fall of 1837, when, on the formation of the Athenian Institute, the two associations united in the support of a course of lectures more extended and miscellaneous; since which time, various useful and popular courses have been delivered by distinguished lecturers.

In order to enjoy, to the fullest extent, the privileges of a corporate body, application was made in the year 1828, agreeably to the act of 6th April, 1791, and the Company became incorporated under the said act.

For the better accommodation of the growing institution, the Library was, in the year 1835, removed to No. 184 Chesnut Street.

The foregoing Historical Sketch of the Mercantile Library Company of Philadelphia—appended to the catalogue published in 1840—contains a brief history of the Institution to that period. It is here purposed to continue the same, in an equally brief manner, to the present time. The Charter and Constitution, by which the Company had been governed, were abrogated in the year 1842, and their place supplied by the Act of Incorporation and By-Laws now in force.

The number of members having increased considerably, and the want of more spacious and suitable accommodations being much felt, the Directors began to take measures, if practicable, to remedy the inconvenience. With this view, as a preparatory measure, application was made to the Legislature of the Commonwealth, at its session of 1841-2, for a special Act of Incorporation, with more extended powers and privileges than those

"This contract, whilst it does not increase the amount heretofore expended for the same service, promises advantages materially greater.

"By this arrangement the engagement with Mr. James Cox expired, after his having occupied the station of Chief Librarian for a period of nineteen years.

"In parting with this gentleman, the Board of Directors desire to express their sense of his constant attachment to the interests of the Company, and his inflexible integrity in the discharge of his duties. Intimately associated with the Institution from an early day, he has constantly manifested a faithfulness deserving the thanks of its members, and a zeal for its welfare which has contributed to its present eminence."

conferred by the charter obtained from the Supreme Court, under authority of the general law; and, accordingly, an act was passed by both branches of that body, which received the approbation of the Governor on the 1st day of July, 1842, creating the Company into a body politic and corporate, with ample powers and privileges, under and by which it holds the valuable property it now possesses.

In pursuance of these powers, the members proceeded to pass a code of by-laws, by which, together with the Act of Incorporation, the Company has since then been governed.

Being thus prepared for a wider sphere of usefulness, the Directors, having first obtained the sanction of the Company, in the early part of the year 1844, purchased from the heirs of Doctor James Gallagher, deceased, the property at the S. E. corner of Fifth and Library Streets, containing thirty-six feet in front on Fifth Street, and one hundred feet on Library Street, at an annual ground rent of $900, stipulating to redeem the same in ten years by the payment of $18,000. Subsequently they purchased from the Directors of the Philadelphia Dispensary the lot adjoining, on the south, containing fourteen feet in front on Fifth Street, by one hundred feet in depth, at an annual ground rent of $180, redeemable at pleasure by the payment of $3000. By these arrangements the Company became possessed of a lot, fronting fifty feet on Fifth Street, and one hundred feet on Library Street, the site of the beautiful edifice now containing the Library.

At the time mentioned, the Company had accumulated a fund of about $3400, the avails of the lectures spoken of in the preceding sketch, which had been set apart for the purpose of erecting a Library Building. This amount being quite inadequate to the contemplated object, it became necessary to devise means for further augmenting it. The plan adopted for this purpose was as follows: It was proposed to open a subscription to shares of stock in the Library, issuing scrip for the same, transferable by endorsement, and allowing subscribers thereto the privilege of holding the scrip free of taxation until such time as they might see proper to convert it into active shares, by taking out certificates and using the Library. The project succeeded admirably; and through the liberality of the merchants and their clerks, and other liberal-minded citizens of Philadelphia—but chiefly of the former—the Directors, in a short time, had the gratification of finding themselves in possession of a sufficient amount of funds to warrant their undertaking the proposed improvement; and, accordingly, a contract was made with Messrs. Kilgore and Hudars, a most responsible building firm, for the erection of the building. The improvement was made after a design by the late Wm. Johnston, an amiable and talented gentleman, and under his superintendence, aided by a committee of the Board. It is considered a monument of his good taste and skill as an architect, and is looked on with pride and satisfaction by the members.

The building was commenced in October, 1844, and was finished in rather less than a year, to the entire satisfaction of the Directors, at a cost of $23,199$\frac{43}{100}$, including book-cases, desks, reading-tables, furniture, and gas fixtures, and also ground rent, water rent, taxes and incidental expenses to the 1st of July, 1845, at which time the Company got possession of the property, and removed the books to the apartments at present occupied by the Library. For convenience of arrangement, and adaptation to the purposes for which it was designed, it is believed that the building is not surpassed; and it is justly deemed one of the chief architectural ornaments of the city.

From the income of the property, a floating debt of about $2500, which was upon it when the building was completed, has been paid off, and the ground rent of $180 per annum to the Philadelphia Dispensary redeemed, leaving the property, at this time, free from incumbrance, save the ground rent of $900 per annum to the heirs of Doctor Gallagher.

The income from rents, of that portion of the building not occupied by the Company is, at present, about $8,100 per annum. When the ground rent shall be entirely extinguished, the net product of this income will revert to the Library Fund, and greatly augment the means for extending the benefits and usefulness of the Institution.

Twenty-eight years have now elapsed since the institution of the Library, and although begun under the distrusts of many, it has never ceased to do good and to advance. Its reading-rooms have been always well attended, and its choicest books have had an unceasing circulation. During this period many of its members have descended to the tomb, or become venerable from age; others have risen to the maturity of the highest mercantile character, while those who were once its youngest members, are found among the enterprising and successful merchants of the day; and a race from the ranks of boyhood are pressing on their steps. To them all, so far as they have chosen to use it, the Library has been a rich treasure, a pure and constant source of pleasure and improvement; and it is not invidious to affirm, that in its list of members may be found a very large proportion of the merchants of our city, who have most honored their profession, have lived most virtuously and happily, who best enjoy and most usefully employ the fruits of their industry, and who are best prepared for the reverses to which all are exposed.

There are at this time on the rolls of the Company, twelve hundred and forty-three Stockholders, nineteen perpetual memberships, fifty-two life members, and forty-three subscribers; in all thirteen hundred and fifty-seven members.

The total receipts during the year just expired, from all sources, have been five thousand seven hundred and seventy dollars and eight cents; the disbursements amount to five thousand six hundred and four dollars and seventy-six cents. Of the receipts, two thousand six hundred and thirty-two dollars and fifty-eight cents, is the income of the Library proper, and the balance, three thousand one hundred and thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents, is the rents of the offices and other rooms of the Library building.

In the year 1832, a supplementary Catalogue was published, at which time the Library contained three thousand one hundred and eighteen volumes. In 1840, a completely new Catalogue was published, consisting of a classified arrangement of the books in sixteen classes, and a list of authors. The number of volumes was then upwards of six thousand.

In the summer of 1849, the Catalogue now issued was commenced, after having been long needed. Owing to unfavorable circumstances the work was so incorrectly performed, that the portion executed was rejected, and the preparation of the Catalogue was undertaken by the Assistant Librarian. The plan that has been adopted consists of first, a classification of the titles, corresponding with the divisions of the books in the cases, arranged alphabetically, under the names of the authors; Secondly, a general index of the name of every author and of every subject of biography, with a brief title to the work, a reference to the page in the first part of the classified Catalogue, where a fuller description is given, and the class and number of the book, that it may be found upon the shelves without reference to the first part; Thirdly, an alphabetical list of the titles of books,—selecting such only as are most popular and more liable to be looked for under the title than the author's name; Fourthly, an alphabetical list of subjects, including many topics whose position in the classified Catalogue might not be indicated by the titles of the classes; reference is made sometimes to particular works and sometimes to the class where treatises on the subject may be found. The classification of works in Part 1st, has been necessarily in some degree inaccurate. The previous incorrect arrangement in many cases could not be changed while the books were constantly issued from the Library. The classification being but a copy of the actual arrangement of the works on the shelves, the proper divisions of the titles according to subjects is restricted by a regard to convenience in placing the books.

Some inaccuracies have occurred in the printing; one of these is in numbering the pages of the second part separately from the first part. The numbers of the pages to which reference is made in the several divisions of Part 2nd, are always in Part 1st.

The number of volumes now in the Library is about nine thousand.

This Library affords to the members a facility which is unusual, if it is not peculiar to this institution;—the book cases are left open to inspection; thus giving to each member a use of the books as free as if they were in his private library. This plan requires, to render it as useful as possible, the actual division of the books in classes on the shelves, as exhibited in the classified Catalogue.

Our estimable fellow citizen, the late Paul Beck, Jr., Esquire, bequeathed, by his last will and testament to the Company, a certificate of loan to St. Paul's Church, for one hundred dollars, bearing 5½ per cent. interest per annum. In making the bequest, Mr. Beck requests of the several societies (thirty in number,) to whom he left similar legacies—"that they will keep the principal of this bequest permanently invested, and use the income thereof, it being my intention to perpetuate by this bequest my annual subscription to each, so long as they may continue to exist," &c. &c.—"Provided, and it is my mind and will, that whenever the St. Paul's Church loan shall be paid off, then said societies shall each invest the amount received for said loan in Pennsylvania State Loan, or other public securities in which trust funds may be legally invested," &c. &c. These directions of Mr. Beck in regard to this fund, are recorded here by way of memento for future observance.

The legacy of Mr. Beck is the first and only one that the Institution has as yet received. The intentions of the benevolent donor are well expressed in the following remarks in a testamentary paper addressed by him to his executors.

"Having bequeathed to a number of Societies the small amount of one hundred dollars to each, that I may not be thought ostentatious, I hereby declare that my intention was solely to perpetuate my annual subscription, without reference to the exact amount thereof; and I take the liberty of recommending to the Directors and Managers of said Societies to pass a By-Law, making it obligatory on the members to keep their subscription list full, by making constant exertions to supply the place of every member they may lose by death, resignation, or otherwise. I have known many charitable Societies, which were got up with great zeal and industry, but for want of proper exertion on the part of the Directors or Managers to keep their list of subscribers full, soon began to lose ground. I offer these remarks with the view to be useful to the different Societies I have membership with; and I wish each of said Societies to have a copy of this recommendation, with the legacy I have bequeathed to them respectively."

The Act of Incorporation, the By-laws of the Company and the Rules adopted by the Directors, for the regulation and government of the Library and Reading Rooms, at present in force, are appended.

ART. 4.—Any member who shall retain a book, or set of books, longer than the time above specified, shall forfeit and pay to the Librarian ten cents per week; after four weeks the fine shall be doubled, and after three months, forfeiture, as in case of the loss of a volume.

On new publications, double fines shall be exacted for detention beyond the period allowed for loaning the same.

ART. 5.—Any book may be re-loaned, unless application has been made by another member, and the Librarian requested to record the application.

ART. 8.—He shall ascertain, during the months of March and September, by an examination of the account of each member, the book or books not then returned to the library in season; and he shall cause the same to be procured of the members in default.

ART. 9.—If any member lose or injure a book, he shall make good the same to the Librarian; and if the book lost or injured be one of a set, he shall pay to the Librarian, for the use of the Association, the full value of said set, and may thereupon receive the remaining volumes as his property.

PREFACE.

THIS catalogue has been prepared for the press by one person in less than five weeks, without restricting at all the circulation of the books, and should therefore make no very high claims to accuracy or thoroughness of execution.

The arrangement of titles under a single alphabet has been adopted from the conviction, now generally entertained by those who have had experience in the management of popular libraries, that it is more convenient and useful than any other. It will be seen that the plan of entering the books is threefold: first, under the name of the author; second, under that word in the title which most distinctly indicates the subject of the work; and third, under the proper title of the book. This repetition of entries renders it easy for any one to find whatever book he may desire. The titles, though in many cases abridged, are given with sufficient fulness for the identification of the books.

To each title is annexed the number of the class to which the book belongs in the present arrangement of the library, and the number which the book bears in that class.
